Tourism looking to salvage season hit hard by shutdown

Scaled-back Ribberfest still on schedule

BY MARK CAMPBELL

With numerous events already canceled and local innkeeper bookings lagging well behind last year due to the COVID-19 emergency, Visit Madison Indiana Inc. and the Jefferson County Tourism Board received a bleak report on one of the area's biggest industries when both groups met Monday.

But rather than focus on lost opportunities and revenue by tourism — both the Madison River Jam and Madison Regatta and Roostertail Music festivals have already been canceled — the groups also heard reports on how they will go about getting back on track if and when state crowd restrictions are relaxed to open the door for the festivals and events that fill hotel rooms and bring business to local shops and restaurants.

From music festivals to car shows and from riverboat visits to local parks and recreation, the coronavirus pandemic has essentially stopped the area's tourism industry in its tracks. Innkeeper bookings are running about 30% behind last season and that could have been much worse if not for several construction projects that continue to help fill local motels with temporary workers.

Workers for Duke Energy worked to restore power to about 200 residences along S.R. 256 after an SUV crashed into a utility pole early Wednesday morning. Deputies were unable to locate the driver but searched the area at length in the early morning darkness.

Crash on 256 results in power outages

Driver missing from scene when police arrived

BY COURIER STAFF

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Office is investigating a single vehicle accident where an SUV left the roadway on State Road 256 near Grange Hall Road and either fled the scene or remains missing and unaccounted.

"From the impact of the crash, if they were not injured or hurting pretty bad it would have to be a miracle," Chief Deputy Josh Taylor said early Wednesday afternoon some 10 hours after the crash.

Taylor said when deputies arrived at the scene just minutes after the crash was reported they found a vehicle registered to a Deputy resident smashed into a steel utility pole with the vehicle's front end high above the ground and all airbags deployed.

Authorities know what time the crash occurred because more than 200 people living in the area lost power at about 2 a.m. Wednesday — presumably when the pole was struck — and first responders were at the scene by 2:05 a.m. However, neither the driver nor anyone else was with the vehicle or at the scene. The fact that it was pitch black outside complicated conducting a search.

Not knowing whether the driver fled the scene to avoid law enforcement or left the scene injured and perhaps even disoriented, officers searched the area at length and were continuing to investigate the crash Wednesday afternoon.

According to a Duke Energy outage map, power was lost by 219 customers in the area near the Jefferson County Fairgrounds and Hereford Lake. Power was restored by about 8 a.m. but Duke crews spent the morning working on the utility pole and lines.

The crash remains under investigation and anyone with information on the accident or anyone walking in the area early Wednesday morning should call the sheriff's office at 812-274-3774.

4-H fair latest to fall victim to pandemic

BY COLLIN OVERTON

The 2020 Jefferson County 4-H Fair is the latest event to fall casualty to the COVID-19 pandemic, Jefferson County Fair Board President Scott Hubbard announced on Wednesday.

Citing the uncertainty of the COVID-19 pandemic and economic hardships in the livestock industry, Hubbard issued a release that the decision to cancel the event for the first time in its 60-plus-year history was "an extremely difficult decision due to the impact it has on our youth and community."

Hubbard said "4-H in Jefferson County has had tremendous support and success over the years. We hate that our youth will not be able to have an on-site event this year. We are also sad for the non-profits, merchants, and community that look forward to the fair and have supported us over the years. We look forward to seeing everyone at the 2021 Jefferson County 4H Fair."

The fair follows the Madison Regatta as the two biggest local events canceled due to the pandemic after organizers of both spent months struggling with how to safely host such crowd-intensive events.

Madison to open parks if Holcomb moves to Stage 3

BY MARK CAMPBELL

The City of Madison stands ready to reopen local ball fields, courts and parks if Gov. Eric Holcomb shifts his five-stage Roadmap to Safely Reopen Indiana to the next level on Sunday.

The governor is expected to shift his Back on Track plan to Stage 3 Sunday and if that happens Madison's little league practice fields will come alive and basketball courts and other facilities will be reopened before the Memorial Day Holiday on Monday.

"All of our facilities are prepping to reopen," Madison Mayor Bob Courtney told members of City Council in a brief Zoom meeting on Tuesday. "There's still some pretty stringent guidelines but we will have little league fields open for our first practices at Rucker Sports Complex on Sunday."

Hanover Town Council to seek grants for road projects

BY COLLIN OVERTON

A crosswalk, new sections of sidewalk and the repaving of 14 roads in Hanover are in the works thanks to another Community Crossings Matching Grant (CCMG) and additional funding, members of Hanover Town Council said at a regular meeting Tuesday night.

The town has undergone several important projects in recent years, such as the sidewalk in front of Southwestern Schools, thanks to Community Crossings grants from the Indiana Department of Transportation. Members wearing masks and face shields Tuesday signed an application for the funds through Midwest Engineers Inc. after senior marketing executive and former county commissioner Julie Berry laid out the details.

Hanover's population qualifies the town to provide only a 25% match of funds toward the project, Berry said, most importantly a sidewalk running through neighborhoods from Thornton Road to North Sycamore Street so that children living in the area can safely walk to school. The town hopes to also pave and mill Thornton Road and several others with grant funds.

Hanover is also allocating part of its $20,000 fund for roadwork toward building a crosswalk across State Road 56 from CVS to Circle K for similar reasons, Clerk Treasurer Keith Mefford said. Mefford said he and a couple other council members had met with INDOT representatives Tuesday to begin developing the logistics of the plan, seen as a necessity for Hanover's busiest intersection.

Superintendent of Streets and Utilities Scott Williams said if funding lines up with past projections, the town will only have to pay about $90,000 of the nearly $500,000 project.

Other streets slated for milling and repaving include Hickory Drive, a portion of Lowry Lane, Jackson Lane, North Clifty Drive to the Hanover Park Community Building, Gray Street, Joe's Lane, Grange Hall Road from Kuntz Road to the town limits, Kuntz Road, Shady Nook, Pine Ridge Road, a portion of Hanover Drive, River Road and Ohio Avenue, Williams said.

He said road and drainage work is especially needed in the area of Thornton Road, where water tends to build up during rainfall and a culvert will need to be placed to eliminate flooding.

Berry said the contract signed Tuesday is just for project development. If the grant isnot funded, Hanover won't be charged for any biddings, specs or other parts of the process, she said. Applications for CCMG are submitted in July.

Continuing the theme of town upkeep, Council President Kenny Garrett addressed the need for better enforcement of land use ordinances in the mobile home parks around town. Citing huge potholes, frequent complaints and the poor upkeep of those properties for decades, Garrett and council member Treva Shelton said there is a greater need for accountability and follow-through with keeping owners and residents in check. They set aside a work session for 6 p.m. on Tuesday, May 26 to talk about how to better enforce regulations.

"There hasn't been one ordinance we've followed through on and I'm tired of putting it off," Garrett said emphatically. "… 30 years ago that trailer park looked the same as it does now."

In other business Tuesday,:

• Town Marshal Shane Caldwell requested $4,000 to purchase a drone with thermal imaging for Hanover Police Department. He said the drone would come in especially handy in missing persons investigations, and one resident has already donated $1,000 toward the purchase, Caldwell said. The Hanover Police Department is currently accepting donations.

• The council approved purchasing a $13,000 sludge press for the Streets and Utilities Department. The press filters liquids from sludge for better disposal.

• Council members retroactively approved a $53,870 bid through Rees Restoration for roofing work on the Hanover Park Community Building.

• Mefford said the Clerk Treasurer's office, which had been closed to the public during the COVID shutdown with customers using a drive through window, is preparing for a soft reopening and may open on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays with two employees and Tuesdays and Thursdays with one employee staffing the office.

Another work session is set for Wednesday, June 3 on the town's cumulative capital development fund, which sets aside money for public emergency situations.

Madison man facing Jennings charges

BY COURIER STAFF

A Madison man has been charged with attempting to escape and battery of a jail officer in connection with an incident at the Jenning County Jail on Monday.

Jadiah Duncan, 31, was being held on theft and criminal mischief charges at the jail in North Vernon on May 19, when Sgt. Steve Frey opened a holding cell door to check on the status of an inmate and Duncan allegedly attacked Frey and attempted to push him to the ground and run toward a hallway door.

Jadiah Duncan

Frey was able to keep the Duncan from getting to the door but sustained a knee injury in the process. Duncan refused to comply to Frey's verbal commands and continued to fight with Frey until Capt. Evan Ponsler assisted Frey in gaining control of Duncan by deploying his taser. Duncan was eventually returned to his cell.

Ponsler was treated and released from a local hospital.

Duncan is now facing additional charges and is being held without bond.

FAIR

Livestock producers were a major factor in the 4-H decision, Hubbard said, since many in the county are unable to find buyers or have had to settle for depressed prices.

As for fair competitions, most will be shifted online and judged based on pictures submitted by each contestant. Other programs, like the dog show, may not find an alternative this year, Hubbard said.

Losing the fair is a substantial financial hit for 4-H. The fair generates about 70% of all 4-H income for the year and draws the largest community involvement out of any event, Hubbard said.

The cancellation is also bad news for the vendors and local clubs and non-profits that set up shop at the fairgrounds every summer for what is a major fundraising opportunity. The Jefferson County 4-H's Fair's traditional carnival company, Poor Jack, was supposed to make its first stop of the year in Jefferson County, Hubbard said.

On top of that, the community will miss out on a social event that's brought locals of different interests together and given something for area youth to do in the middle of the summer.

"The fair is a very intricate, integrated, complicated event with a lot of parts that go together, and so when one part starts to disappear you lose all of that," Hubbard said. "I can remember as a teenager growing up and looking forward to the fair every year, going out to socialize and see everybody for a week. I think a lot of our community has grown up with that as an opportunity … that aspect just won't be there.

In fact, all city parks and shelter houses will reopen with the exception of Crystal Beach pool, which is slated to open in mid-June. The state will also allow commercial gyms and fitness center to reopen as well as pools and campgrounds.

The City of Madison's campground along the Ohio River has been turning away campers most of the spring before a partial reopening recently but the facility will be able completely reopen Sunday if Holcomb's new order comes through.

Courtney also noted that Tuesday's Zoom video conference meeting of City Council could be the group's last of that type. Once the state shifts to Stage 3, crowd restrictions will be relaxed enough for the city to return to open meetings in person in council chambers.

In other business, Courtney gave a brief report on a number of projects that recently received final approval including the city's interlocal agreement with Jefferson County, which was approved by both the county Commissioners and Council since the city's previous meeting, and $208,000 in improvement grants recommended by the city's PACE Review Board and approved by the Board of Public Works.

"The agreement has been fully executed and now we can start all the hard work of that agreement," Courtney said of the interlocal agreement that will see the city share its portion of a new public safety income tax with the county to help fund a new county jail in exchange for the county developing a substance abuse treatment facility and supporting historic preservation and economic development projects with the city.

"We're going to have some beautiful outcomes with that program," the mayor said of the PACE grants.

In other business, Councilman Curtis Chatham reported that a new sports commission is being formed to help market Madison and Jefferson County as a sports destination by evaluating and organizing local assets to offer youth and adult tournaments, camps while bringing more sports tourism dollars into the community.

Courtney said now is a great time to pursue the project because he has named interim Madison Parks Director Seth Pennington to that job permanently and the department is in the process of evaluating both programs and facilities for improvement.

Councilman Dan Dattilo urged local residents to support the Fairplay Fire Company's annual fish fry fundraiser from noon to 4 p.m. on Saturday. Held in conjunction with the Old Court Days annually, the fish fry will be on its own this year since Court Days fell victim to the COVID-19 emergency. Due to the virus and crowd restrictions, the fish fry itself will be carry-out only and customers are urged to call ahead and place orders. Phone lines will open at 11 a.m. at 812-265-4949.

Boosting self-esteem important for teens

DAVID SUTTER
JEFFERSON COUNTY PROSECUTOR

May is National Teen Self-Esteem Month, which was created to raise public awareness about how low self-esteem can affect teens. The teenage years are a notoriously difficult time for many young people. On top of physical and emotional changes, teens also must contend with the added pressures of social changes, new relationships, increased educational expectations, and peer pressure.

We should take particular note of this issue as Hoosiers. Indiana's teen suicide rate has been higher than the national average since 1999. According to the "Indiana Youth Risk Behavior Survey," 22% of girls and 12% of boys surveyed in grades 9-12 seriously considered attempting suicide in the last year. Suicide is the second leading cause of death for Hoosier teens, with more than 50 Indiana young people committing suicide each year. Jefferson County is no exception. In fact, according to a 2018 New York Times article, in 2016, the suicide rate in Jefferson County was the highest suicide rate for any Indiana county, and more than twice the state average. Compared with the national rate, a startling 3.2 times higher.

It is not just suicide that is a concern. The National Survey of Children's Health reports that depression is the most prevalent mental disorder experienced among adolescents, with 30.8% of Indiana high school students reporting feeling sad or hopeless to the point that they stopped doing some usual activities almost every day for two or more weeks in a row. Life events can trigger depression, but it can also develop for no apparent reason. Some signs of depression in teens include: difficulty falling asleep, or oversleeping; less socializing with friends or parents; loss of interest in activities they used to enjoy; frequent bouts of crying; or alcohol or drug use.

Teens most at risk for depression and/or suicide include victims of crime or bullying, those experiencing problems with friends, or teens suffering a traumatic event or loss. Some studies also suggest that the more time teenagers spend on social media, the more likely they are to be depressed.

Setting aside a national awareness month provides a good reminder for us to help young people feel more confident about themselves. Parents and guardians of teens are asked to make a particular effort during the month of May to be a positive role model for the young people in their lives. There are many ways to do this, such as leading by example; avoiding negativity; ensuring open lines of communication; building trust; guiding and encouraging your teen to make healthy decisions; listening and taking an interest in their lives. Parents and guardians are in the best position to notice changes in your teen. If he or she shows signs of depression, I encourage you to seek professional help. Visit your child's pediatrician or make an appointment to talk with a behavioral health specialist.

As your prosecutor, this and every month my office will be working to lift up young people in our community. Our victim's assistance program is here to ensure the safety and well-being of young victims, and to make sure their voice is heard in our court system. We, along with our law enforcement partners, will always set a good example for the teens around us, and will work to encourage them to be all they can be. My office will continue to actively engage with our community school systems by participating in and monitoring safety protocols, encouraging anti-bullying efforts, helping with career days, serving as guest speakers, and working to cut back on truancy to help more teens graduate.

As a community, we owe it to our teens to help them succeed in life. As we take this opportunity to reflect on how we can best do that, rest assured that as your Prosecutor, I will continue to keep our young people at the forefront of my work every day, and I will always look out for their best interest in the work that we do.

South Ripley Junior High names Hutton principal

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Derik Hutton may not have been able to bring home that elusive sectional championship to Southwestern, but his impact on the school's baseball program cannot be measured simply in wins and losses.

Hutton officially resigned as head baseball coach at Southwestern High School on Monday night to accept the principal's position at South Ripley Junior High School in Versailles. Hutton, a South Ripley graduate, led the Rebels for nine seasons, a span that saw the program rise from the ashes to a legitimate conference and sectional contender.

Derick Hutton officially resigned as head baseball coach at Southwestern High School on Monday night to accept the principal's position at South Ripley Junior High School in Versailles. Hutton, a South Ripley graduate, led the Rebels for nine seasons, a span that saw the program rise from the ashes to a legitimate conference and sectional contender.

"Our goal from the beginning was to make this program a contender," Hutton said. "We knew that it would take a long time to get where we wanted to go but we feel like we succeeded and we were getting there the right way."

Prior to Hutton's hiring in 2010, Southwestern had six coaches in 11 years since winning the sectional title in 1999. That extreme turnover left the program without much of a base and it quickly became Hutton's primary goal.

The Rebels won 11 games in his second year but spent his first six years well behind the field in both the Ohio River Valley Conference and a very tough sectional. It wasn't until 2017 when things began to come together and Southwestern posted three-straight winning regular seasons.

Last year, Southwestern nearly reached the top. The Rebels went 19-10 to post their best record since 2000 and lost a heartbreaker to Austin in the sectional championship game.

Southwestern lost ace pitcher Bailey Elliott to graduation but returned virtually its entire lineup this year and was poised to have a spectacular campaign. But the COVID-19 pandemic wiped out the season and the Rebels never had a chance to show their stuff.

"It was definitely a deflating moment for the coaches and players when it was announced that the season was canceled. We were one run away last year and we really felt like we were going to win it this year," Hutton said. "I especially hate it for our seniors because they're a really talented group and we were hoping to send them out on top but it wasn't able to happen."

Overall in nine seasons, Hutton posted a 95-138 record, but the Rebels went 46-35 over his final three seasons.

"Derik was a blessing for us. He was a highly qualified candidate when he took the job. He has done an excellent job in both creating and building a program and in making major improvements to our facilities," Southwestern athletic director Tom Scroggins said. "He is a great teacher and coach and we are going to miss him."

Southwestern head baseball coach Derik Hutton (in glasses) has resigned his position to take the principal's job at at South Ripley Junior High School.

Hutton's move to South Ripley was not an easy decision. A standout baseball player for the Raiders, he played collegiately at the University of Southern Indiana after graduating from Ripley in 2002 and began working at Southwestern High School shortly after graduation.

Several years ago he began thinking about pursuing administration and when the principal's job at South Ripley opened up, he knew it was a rare opportunity he had to take.

"It was really two-fold; a chance to be closer to my family and chance to come back home. I wasn't sure if I had a chance but I knew that I had to apply and give it a shot," Hutton said. "This is a special place to me and South Ripley Junior High is a 4-star, Blue Ribbon school with so many accomplished teachers. It's a young, vibrant school and I really couldn't ask for more."

Still, he struggled with the decision.

"I think a lot of people may think that it was an easy decision but it really wasn't. I've been in Hanover and Jefferson County for 12 years and you make a lot of relationships that you treasure," Hutton said. "The hardest thing I did was calling all of those players and telling them one by one my decision. And I've got to say, they were 100% behind me. That really made it easier knowing that they had your back like that."

Hutton's resignation will become official once the working year ends and he will then transition to his principal duties in Versailles. And although his coaching career may be over, he said don't expect to see him stay away from the baseball field.

"I'm sure there will be some games where people will say, 'who's that big guy watching from the outfield?' " Hutton said with a laugh. "And I'm not just talking about South Ripley games. I've been around those guys at Southwestern since they were in sixth grade, I know them well. There is no way that I'll miss their games. I'll still be cheering them on."

H1 Unlimited E-League set to debut this weekend

BY MADISON COURIER STAFF

Unlimited hydroplane racing will make its debut this weekend, only it won't be on a lake or a river, but instead on your computer.

The H1 Unlimited Hydroplane Racing Series has announced the formation of the H1 Unlimited E-League, an online racing series that will kick off on Saturday with the virtual running of the Guntersville Lake Hydrofest in Guntersville, Alabama.

The racing league will be conducted on the HydroSim racing software, which was developed by Scott Przybylski of San Diego. HydroSim has been conducting online racing leagues for the past several years, featuring players from all around the world.

Modeling itself after the e-racing league that was conducted by NASCAR and IndyCar in recent weeks, the H1 Unlimited E-League will feature 12 HydroSim drivers who are selected by the H1 teams to represent them as virtual racers. Drivers race virtual replicas of H1 Unlimited hydroplanes on replicas of some of H1's greatest courses. Each E-League race will follow the traditional H1 racing format with drivers accumulating points throughout the season with a championship awarded at the end of the season.

Each E-League season will be conducted during H1's typical offseason with dates to be announced later.

Several drivers have been announced by their respective teams, including both drivers for the Miss Madison-owned teams. Kelsey Best will drive the U-6 Miss HomeStreet and Tim Johnson will drive the U-91 Goodman Real Estate.

Other drivers will be: Cei Bowen, U-3 Go3Racing; Nicholas "DJ" Miller, U-7 Spirit of Detroit; Scott Przybylski, U-9 Jones Racing; Peyton Hopp, U-10 Spirit of Detroit II; Travis Johnson, U-11 J&Ds; Quinton Miller, U-12 Graham Trucking; Mickey Washburn, U-21 Go Fast Turn Left Racing; Matt Johnson, U-98 Graham Trucking; Eddie Kanfoush, U-99.9 KISW Miss Rock; and Beau Rarig, U-440 Bucket List Racing.

The H1 Unlimited E-League races will be broadcast live on the H1 Facebook, YouTube and Twitch channels. Saturday's race will begin at 3 p.m. EDT.

Madison Courier Firecracker 10K canceled

BY COURIER STAFF

The 2020 Madison Courier Firecracker 10K Run/Walk has been canceled this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The annual race has traditionally been run on Fourth of July weekend, in conjunction with the Madison Regatta. The Regatta has also been canceled for this year.

"When the Madison Regatta and Roostertail Music Festivals elected to cancel their 2020 events due to COVID-19 concerns, it made sense to cancel the Courier 10K Run/Walk for the same reasons. The safety of our participants and our volunteers has always been a top consideration in holding the event and this year even more so," the Madison Courier said in a statement. "We know this leaves a big hole on Independence Day for our longtime participants but we wanted to make the decision prior to the opening of preregistration and to allow patrons to make other plans for Fourth of July Weekend."

The race is expected be run as scheduled on Saturday, July 3, 2021.

"We look forward to the time when boat races and music festivals and events like the 10K can once again be enjoyed by our community and its guests," the Courier said.

Unrelated traffic stops lead to drug arrests

BY COURIER STAFF

Madison Police on patrol arrested three adults for drug possession and other charges in two unrelated traffic stops recently.

On Friday, Patrolman Cameron Blankenship observed a silver Toyota being driven by Breonna M. Youngblood 29, Madison. Knowing from prior contacts that Youngblood does not possess a valid operator's license, Blankenship executed a traffic stop on Crescent Street.

During that stop and a subsequent search of Youngblood's vehicle, Youngblood was cited for possession of marijuana and driving without a license (never issued). A passenger, Scott D. Paul 30, Lawrenceburg, was found to be in possession of methamphetamine and paraphernalia associated with the use of the drug and was arrested for possession of methamphetamine, possession of a syringe, possession of paraphernalia and criminal trespassing.

On Monday, Madison Police received a report of a reckless driver in a white, full-sized Ford pickup traveling south on Michigan Hill. Chief John Wallace observed the truck traveling southbound on West Street and executed a traffic stop in the 100 block of E. Second Street after observing erratic driving.

As result of the traffic stop and subsequent search of the vehicle, a crystal type substance was located in the console of the pickup. The substance field tested positive as methamphetamine.

Chad T. Hester 40, Madison, Indiana, was arrested for possession of methamphetamine and lodged in the Jefferson County Jail.

Wallace was assisted in the arrest by Det. Kyle Cutshaw, Patrolman Trent Smith, Capt. Bruce Heaton and Jefferson County Sheriff's Det. Yancy Denning.

Let go of first love

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I've been seeing this guy, "David," on and off for almost a year and a half and we have this long-distance relationship going on. This is my very first relationship, but he's been with a few women in the past. While we can't see each other as often as we'd like, I intend to fix that this fall semester, since I'll be transferring to a college that is closer to where he lives. I'm really looking forward to watching football games together and bringing him to college parties with me.

The bottom line is that I've grown to really have feelings for him. In fact, I think I love him. But sometimes when we talk, he reminds me that I'm not going to be the only woman in his life. He tells me that he plans to come home one day to children — and two women.

He says he would like to start seeing someone else while still dating me. Although it kind of breaks my heart, I'd still want to be in that relationship with him. I said I'd be there for him no matter what happens because I love him so much. And I said that I'm fine with another woman. But really, I don't think I am.

There are many great things about David: He does his "boyfriend duties." He's there for me when I'm sad, when I need to rant, when I just need to feel loved. We text each other a lot when we're both not too busy. I know he has work, and he works on recording music after work, which can make life pretty busy. So some days we don't talk to each other, which I totally understand.

I don't want to let go of him because he's become such a big part of my life already.

I want him to be happy and achieve his dream of living with two women, so I wouldn't mind if another woman is involved. And if it ever got to be too much for me, I could just leave him (and take any children we have with me and be a single mom), right?

I don't know what I really feel. I want to be with him, but I don't want to fight for his attention. Am I selfish in a way for wanting my man to myself, to not have to share him with another woman? What should I do? — In Between

Dear In Between: This will never work, no matter how hard you try. You are clearly not OK with the idea of Mark having a second girlfriend (and who would blame you). Break it off, and the sooner the better. You'll feel lonely for a little while, but not nearly as lonely as you would beside someone who can never love you the way that you need.

I know this is your first relationship, and you can't imagine yourself with anyone else. But there will be someone else — someone who will think it's a dream come true to date just you.

Missing a personal notification

Dear Annie: My first cousin died two weeks ago, but not one of her siblings called to tell me or any of my sisters the news. Two of the cousin's siblings have my phone number because I sent them a family Christmas newsletter with my phone number and email in the letter. I finally saw my cousin's obituary on Facebook. I am beyond hurt that the cousins did not personally telephone to tell of the sad news. The cousin who died was 72 years old, but in failing health for years.

Am I wrong to be hurt and disappointed my family did not get a phone call? — Deeply Hurt in PA

Dear Deeply Hurt: Feelings aren't right or wrong; they just are. It's what we do with them that matters. In this case, I think you ought to try setting aside your feelings for a moment to consider your cousins'. They're hurting, too. They just lost their dear sister. Their forgetting to tell you was not intentional. Grief has a way of wreaking havoc on short-term memory. Reach out to them in love, not in anger, and join them in remembering your cousin. I'm so sorry for your loss.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: This is regarding "Torn," who couldn't decide whether or not to move forward with her new boyfriend after having recently divorced. I'd like to call attention to some of her quotes: "He is not really my type"; "He is everything my ex is not"; "I'm still not fully over my ex." On top of this, she notes that she needs alimony from her ex-husband, which is mainly why she's been keeping this relationship a secret and reluctant to get too serious. Wow!

Your answer was basically that she should not rush herself and to not marry him if she wasn't ready. Here's my take on it: She called this new guy as soon as her divorce was finalized. She seems to be leading him on while telling him she isn't ready to make a commitment. To me, it sounds like she still loves her ex. She ought to let this new man go so that he can find someone who will love him back, the way he deserves. She should give herself some time to be without a partner or a lover. And she should focus instead on her kids who are, no doubt, in need of some extra love and attention during this sad time in their lives. — Daily Reader and Fan

Dear Reader: I think you've gotten to the heart of the matter more than my initial response did. It's so important to take time for oneself between relationships. Moving on to someone else too soon does a disservice to both parties.

TOURISM

With the county's Innkeepers' Tax falling well short of budget projections, Visit Madison cashed in one of its annuities this month — almost $118,000 — to help make payroll and keep cash on hand until tourism once again starts producing.

According to Executive Tourism Director Tawana Thomas, with pandemic restrictions scheduled to end in phases, business from tourism is not going to completely return overnight but she thinks after weeks of being stuck at home, visitors in the one-to two-hour travel region around Madison are ready to get out and will be visiting Madison sooner rather than later as long as the rate of new COVID-19 cases and deaths continue to decline.

With the next phase of Indiana's Back on Track plan for reopening businesses and services scheduled to begin Sunday — barring a setback in virus cases — one of the area's biggest festivals appears to still be on, albeit with a smaller footprint and focus, and several events are being added to fill the void left by other cancellations.

Madison Ribberfest, the barbecue and blues food and music festival in August, is still scheduled. Organizers have surveyed Bicentennial Park based on projected crowd restrictions and anticipated social distancing guidelines and the area should be able to safely accommodate more than 1700 fans. While that is well below the normal draw of the festival, it could still be sufficient for what will be billed as a reduced event his year.

Since contracts and appearance fees must be paid up front to secure the featured bands and headline performers at an event like Ribberfest, the uncertainty of the virus pandemic has led organizers to side with caution and cancel the bulk of the two-day program in favor of a one-day event that will focus on less expensive regional bands with less financial risk in the event the pandemic takes a turn for the worse and the event has to be canceled.

The issue is more complex than whether state or local governments will allow the festival to take place or crowds attend. Organizers must also come to terms with the safety of entertainers, fans and volunteers and whether the precautions that will be needed to protect everyone render the event untenable.

"The majority of our coordinators and volunteers are in that 55 to 65 age group that is at high risk," Thomas said, adding that even having to wear personal protective equipment like face masks in what is likely to be extreme August heat poses a threat in addition to the virus. "But everybody agreed let's don't shut this thing down but let's look at if we went forward could we do a reduced one day event with local and regional acts."

Thomas said a one-day event could still appeal to local fans as well as some visitors with good music and lower ticket prices but fewer food vendors. She said one option might be to cancel the competition portion of the barbecue festival while still allowing local amateurs to set up their smokers in a non-competitive event to provide some of the ambiance festival goers are used to.

Joe Craig, a Visit Madison board member, urged against canceling the professional barbecue competition sanctioned by the Kansas City Barbecue Society because it is now the oldest ongoing barbecue competition in the state and that distinction should be preserved if possible. He also noted that the professional teams would be more likely to follow whatever guidelines might need to be in place in regard to the virus pandemic and more likely to generate tourism dollars by staying in local motel rooms and buying from local businesses.

With three months still remaining before the event, Thomas said a number of issues will be revisited and plans could change as new reports on the virus are released and Gov. Eric Holcomb issues new orders to either lessen or increase restrictions.

"We still want to have it. Unfortunately it won't be the Ribberfest we're used to but we still want to do something," Thomas said.

Based on the Governor's Back on Track plan, if all goes well Indiana should be totally reopened by July 4. That will be too late to save events like the Madison Regatta but not the Fourth of July Fireworks Show, according to Madison Community Relations Director Hannah Fegan.

Fegan said the city is raising funds to host the annual fireworks show as well as three pop-up drive-in movie events on dates to be announced in May, June and July at the Jefferson County 4-H Fairgrounds. The fireworks will cost about $30,000 — $23,000 of that for the actual fireworks with $10,000 contributed to date — and the movies are expected to cost around $3,000 total. All four events will be free and open to the public.

Meanwhile, Tourism Board member Curtis Chatham reported that the groundwork is being laid to create a Jefferson County Sports Commission to begin organizing events for as soon as this summer. He said the Commission, which has not yet been formed, would identify and organize tournaments and events utilizing area ball fields, courts and parks for youth and adult athletics.

Chatham said while there are a number of parks and schools programs currently, for much of the season local athletic venues sit unused or at least underutilized in Madison, Jefferson County and nearby Hanover College. He said local teams often travel to other communities to compete in tournaments and camps and for Jefferson County to not be involved in hosting similar events is an untapped opportunity for the athletes and their families and the tourism industry.

On Wednesday, Mayor Bob Courtney talked briefly about Chatham's proposal at Madison City Council while also announcing that Madison's interim Parks Director Seth Pennington has been hired to serve in that capacity full-time. Courtney agreed with Chatham that Madison's facilities would be perfect for such events and will only get better as a current project to evaluate and develop an improvement plan for the entire parks system and its leagues moves forward this year.

Thomas said while Visit Madison's event-related activity has been curtailed during the current COVID shutdown, it has in no way diminished the agency's efforts on planning, organization and networking within the industry via Zoom and other virus safe methods.

"We've been taking full advantage of this time to do research," she said, noting the staff has assembled a full spreadsheet of all volunteers as well as identifying and cultivating new volunteers who can help move the various projects forward in the future.
